WRANGELL SAWMILL DESTROYED BY FIRE

Big Conflagration Monday Morning Wipes Out Sawmill, Box Factory and Planing Mill

Wrangell Fire Department and Citizens Render Valuable Service in Preventing Fire From Spreading

The sawmill, planing mill and box factory of the Willson & Sylvester Mill Company burned to the ground on Monday forenoon.

The fire started at 8:30 and was caused from a hot box in connection with a cut-off saw. An alarm of fire was given instantly and in a few minutes the flames had spread all over the mill. The structure having been put up a number of years ago, was so dry as to be almost inflammable. In less than five minutes the flames burst through the roof more than a hundred feet into the air like a giant blow torch. For a short time it looked as if the lumber yard and surrounding buildings would be destroyed. The contents of Manager Willson's office were transferred to the electric light plant. Some of the household effects were removed from the residence of M. O. Johnson. Fortunately it was a wet morning and there was no wind. This condition combined with the prompt and daring work of the fire department who were aided by citizens made it possible to keep the fire confined to the mill, box factory and planing mill.

About a hundred citizens formed a bucket brigade and supplemented the work of the fire department in preventing the fire from spreading from the planing mill.

The mill started up for the season on March 4. Its destruction in a measure effects the nation's interest, for at the time it was working on large orders of spruce for aeroplane construction. The mill had a capacity of thirty thousand feet daily. There was a large stock of lumber on hand all of which was saved.

The destruction of the mill at this time when rebuilding can be undertaken only under difficulties is no small misfortune to the owners. And the owners are not the only ones who will feel the loss. For almost thirty years the mill has been Wrangell's most steady and dependable source of revenue. The absence of a payroll of thousands of dollars each month is bound to have its effect on every business man in town.

Too much praise cannot be given the Wrangell Fire Department for their faithful and untiring efforts from the time the fire began until it was entirely out in the afternoon.

The owners of the mill state that they have not made any definite plans for the future. The amount of insurance on the mill and stock on hand was $20,000.

NOTICE

We wish to thank the members of the Wrangell Fire Department and the citizens of Wrangell for their prompt response and untiring efforts during the fire which destroyed the Wrangell Sawmill Monday morning.

Presbyterian Church.

Substitution. What does the Bible teach about it?

"Purge out therefore the old leaven, that ye may be a new lump, as ye are unleavened. For even Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us. Therefore let us keep the feast, not with the old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth." Cor. 5:7-8.

We invite you to come. We want to have good music and a profitable service.

Palm Sunday

St. Philip's Church

Donald Hankey in his book entitled "The Student in Arms" has a notable chapter describing the "Beloved Captain." It is the story of a man who is a born leader, beloved by his men, who gave his life for his country. In a much larger sense is He who rode into Jerusalem the first palm Sunday "The Beloved General." This will be the theme at St. Philip's Church, Sunday evening, March 24.

All are cordially invited.

REGARDING OUR SCHOOLS

An Important Duty Confronts Us

When Mr. L. D. Henderson, Commissioner of Education for Alaska, visited Wrangell recently, he urged upon the local school board the importance of medical examination in the school, and outlined the plan which had been followed successfully in Juneau. The Wrangell board is unanimous in its approval of Mr. Henderson's suggestion and are working on a plan of procedure which will no doubt be carried into effect in the near future. The expense of the examination is borne by the school.

The March Bulletin sent out from the Commissioner's office has the following to say under the caption "A Duty Confronts Us":

"The war is teaching Americans many things and none more clearly than this—there is imperative need for the schools of the United States to pay more definite attention to the physical well being of the boys and girls for whose future usefulness they are so largely responsible. This attention should be exercised not only along lines that will correct bodily defects which now exist but also along the line which has as its guiding principle the motto: 'An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.'"

"Statistics from the various localities in which physical examinations of drafted or enlisted men is made show that sixty-eight per cent of the men examined are suffering from bodily defects of a more or less serious nature. 29.11 per cent of those examined are rejected. This figure is two and one half per cent lower than during our Civil War and clearly indicates the advance of medical science and knowledge of personal and community hygiene. These statistics further show that from eighteen to twenty-five per cent more serious defects are present in the men residing in rural or village communities than in those coming from larger towns or cities. While this latter condition may be attributed to a variety of causes, it is felt that the one which most directly contributes is the fact that definite physical training is seldom a part of the rural school curriculum, that medical inspection and dental examinations are almost completely neglected, and that the sanitary conditions in the rural or village school are not the subject of much attention on the part of teachers and school officials while just the reverse of the conditions mentioned is true in the school systems of larger towns or cities."

"It is scarcely possible for the majority of Alaska schools to provide for a large amount of definite physical training in connection with the work of the school. Calisthenics and drills having as their purpose the correction of defects arising from faulty posture either at school or in the home can, however, be introduced in all. The sanitary conditions of the school can be regulated to a great extent by strict attention to ventilation, by taking care that rooms are not over heated, by keeping toilets clean and well disinfected, by strict use of individual drinking cups and towels, by keeping floors window sills, desks, and the general contents of school rooms clean and free from dust and by careful and definite instruction in the rules of personal hygiene."

"Medical inspection and dental examination of school children have advanced beyond the stage where they are to be considered as fads and now ranks as necessities in the well organized schools of the United States or of any other country in which education and civilization have reached a high degree of development. Not all Alaska schools are so situated that it is possible for medical and

AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE.—A German aeroplane flew over the American sector northwest of Toule and dropped rubber balls eighteen inches in diameter filled with liquified mustard gas. This is the first time an aeroplane has been thus employed. The effect of the gas is not serious, but the American troops were infuriated by what they termed dirty warfare.

THE MARIPOSA MAY BE RAISED

Salvage Company Having a Divers' Survey Made of the Wreck

Capt. H. B. Babbington, I. Less and E. Brennan of the Vancouver Dredge and Salvage Company, arrived on the Princess Royal, Tuesday bringing with them a diving outfit.

The gentlemen left today with Charles Darwell on the Marguerite for the scene of the Mariposa wreck where they will make a divers survey to determine the feasibility of raising the vessel.

Capt. Babbington stated to the Sentinel reporter that whether the Mariposa will be raised will depend entirely upon the condition she is in. He stated that from all reports he had received he was inclined to believe that it can be raised. "However, we can soon tell when we get out there," he added.

It was Capt. Babbington who raised the Curaco at Warmchuck in 1913, and the Northland at Kake in 1917.

able to give you information from authoritative sources that proposals for peace have just been made by Austria and Germany directly to our government which has indignantly rejected them although they were quite alluring."

LONDON.—German vessels were bombarding Dunkirk when attacked by the British and French.

WASHINGTON.—Dutch ships taken over by America total six hundred thousand tons; British about four hundred thousand tons.

ZURICH.—Holland must expect that submarines will blockade all her ports as a result of the taking over of Dutch shipping by the Allies and America, it was semi-officially announced in Berlin today.

LONDON.—Two enemy destroyers and two enemy torpedo boats have been sunk by British and French destroyers. The Admiralty announces that one British craft was damaged but no allied vessel sunk.

LONDON.—German artillery opened up at dawn today with terrific bombardment against the whole British front between Scarpe river to a point south of St. Quentin.

AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE.—American troops in a sector south of Luneville participated last night in a raid on the German trenches penetrating the enemy lines for some distance. Hand to hand fighting ensued. The raiders returned to the American lines after forty minutes' raid. Raid was carried out in conjunction with the French troops after a brief but intense barrage. The Germans retaliated with a heavy fire of gas and high explosive shells on the American batteries.

The big fire this week emphasizes the necessity for the early erection of a tower or shed for drying out hose. The weather being damp and drizzly after the fire Monday Chief Carlson was up against it for some place to dry out the hose. J. G. Grant very generously permitted the chief to use the hotel sample room for this purpose. The sample room is not always available and besides it would be too much to expect that Mr. Grant or any other citizen would be willing to have a lot of dirty hose brought into his house after each fire.

Fred Anniskett arrived in Wrangell yesterday forenoon bringing with him his eleven year old son, Daniel Collins, who had a broken ankle. The boy was taken to Dr. Upton who found the patient in such a condition that it was necessary to give an anesthetic before attending to the break.

Charles Hawkesworth, superintendent of Indian education in Southeastern Alaska, accompanied by Mrs. Hawkesworth, visited the Native school of Wrangell while the City of Seattle was in port Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Hawkesworth were returning to Juneau from Hyaburg where they attended the Native fair.

CITIZENS OF PETERSBURG PROTEST

Against Enemy Aliens Being Permitted to Fish in Alaskan Waters

Strong Resolutions Adopted at Big Mass Meeting Held Last Week

The people of Petersburg do not share the opinion of the Ketchikan Miner that the people of Wrangell have the wrong notion in strenuously objecting to the importation of Austrian alien enemies to fish in Alaska the coming season.

Last week there was a well attended mass meeting in the Sons of Norway hall at Petersburg at which strong resolutions of protest against the proposed importation of Austrian alien enemy fishermen were passed.

In addition to pointing out that it would be unpatriotic to bring Austrian enemy aliens to Alaska where it would be impossible to keep close watch on them, the resolutions further set forth that such alien enemy fishermen would have a demoralizing effect on the now harmonious conditions existing between fishermen and the canneries and would also be a constant menace to the safety and welfare of the district.

Copies of the resolutions were sent to the Governor and to the Delegate from Alaska at Washington. In addition to this several hundred copies of the resolutions have been distributed in Southeastern Alaska and Seattle.

FORMER RESIDENT DIES IN JUNEAU

Sam Kohn Was In Wrangell During Cassiar Rush and Resided Here Number of Years

Sam Kohn, a pioneer of Alaska since '84, died Wednesday morning March 13 at St. Ann's Hospital. He was taken ill Thursday night and was at once removed to the hospital, but never rallied.

He had lived in Alaska for the past 35 years and in Juneau, off and on for the past 20 years. He had prospected in Cassiar, and about Wrangell, Juneau and other Alaskan towns. He represented the old school of prospectors and pioneers whose latch string was always on the outside, and leaves a host of warm personal friends, who will mourn his loss.

A sister, Mrs. Alice Foster, survives in Cody, Wyoming, and who has been sent a wire. No funeral arrangements will be made until she is heard from.—Juneau Empire.

It will be learned with deep regret that Miss Hannah Breece sustained a painful injury last week by falling on an icy pavement in Douglas and breaking both bones of her right leg just above the ankle, and badly twisting the ligaments. Miss Breece lay helpless in the cold for some little time shouting for help. Finally an Indian woman came to her assistance and helped her into the Native school building. There is no telephone in the school and there was another long delay before word could reach Dr. Mooney of the Indian service who was summoned. According to the Juneau papers Miss Breece is doing as well as could be expected and it is thought that she will be able to be about on crutches in a few weeks. Miss Breece was principal of the Native school at Wrangell for two years. She left here last summer.

THEY GIVE THEIR ALL

Pale, exhausted, sobbing, gasping, she returns from the Valley of the Shadow of Death to turn a mother's first look upon the tiny creature upon the pillow beside her. It is a boy, they tell her, and her heart goes out to God for the glory of it. The agony is forgotten. She has given to the world a man. She puts an arm around the child, an arm that will always be there to guide and protect. Beautiful visions of the future with her son, HER SON, in all of them, possess the new world that's been created in her heart, and, with the heavenly smile of motherhood glowing upon her face, she falls asleep.

Time slips along on the wings of lightning. The wee knit shoes, not two inches long, give way to sturdy shoes of leather and are put away in some sacred hiding place as keepsakes. What mending, brushing, advising, as her boy starts off to school! What nights and days of work and worry, sacrifice for his sake! Mother's boy must look well, behave well, live well, and God alone can keep record of how much of her hope, soul and life mother puts into it. But it will pay. Some day, she'll go shopping, or to the theater, or to church on the arm of a fine, manly fellow, HER BOY. Some day it will always be "Don't do that, mother; let me do it!" Some day, it will be the strong arm of her boy about her, to protect and to return the nights and days of care and unselfish love.

And, behold! her boy is a man, and throughout the world goes up a cry for all true men! A mad beast ravages the earth, would befall all motherhood, would make all men mere brutes and human happiness the hopeless plaything of greed of power; a beast that says to mothers: "Your sons are but fodder for my guns!" to sons, "Your mothers are but brood sows for my power!"

Her man, her boy that was, answers that call. "Here," he says, is my all and my mother's all. Justice, happiness, mother's love shall not perish from the earth. My life for it! How handsome and noble he looks in his new uniform! How true and brave he surely will be! BUT OH! HOW DEAR HE IS! How her heart fills to bursting, as memory piles upon her all the joys, struggles, sacrifices that made him hers, since that day when she turned upon her pillow and glorified the Creator who had sent her a boy who would, some day, play a man's part!

Today, her boy, a man, is tossed by the icy waves of foreign seas, a corpse; for the beast has sneaked up through the spume and blown a ship to bits. The stricken mother is alone. No husband, no friend, no relative, none save Him who knows all, can know her heart. She goes to her chamber and puts in her bosom the little knit shoes, while her hungry eyes seek his toys, his books, his clothes, anything that was part of him; and all is darkness!

Over 200 other American mothers are, today, as she is! And the horror of it must multiply a thousand fold!

Oh! let us who lose no sons, who feel no loss that wrings the heart and pictures all the future

WRITTEN RECORD OF ATROCITIES

Diaries of German Soldiers Tell of Murder and Pillage in Belgian Cities.

CALLED "DISGRACE TO ARMY"

No Discrimination Made Between Innocent and Guilty—Infants Shot in Dead Mothers' Arms—Testimony of Brand Whitlock.

Very many German soldiers who have been taken prisoner had kept diaries, and these have been confiscated by the captors. Many have been published, frequently with facsimile reproductions to guarantee their authenticity. The following extracts, with the testimony of Brand Whitlock, are made public by the committee on public information at Washington:

"Aug. 23. . . . Our men came back and said that at the point where the valley joined the Meuse we could not get any further, as the villagers were shooting at us from every house. We shot the whole lot—16 of them. They were drawn up in three ranks; the same shot did for three at a time.

. . . The men had already shown their brutal instincts; . . .

"The sight of the bodies of all the inhabitants who had been shot was indescribable. Every house in the whole village was destroyed. We dragged the villagers one after another out of the most unlikely corners. The men were shot as well as the women and children who were in the convent, since shots had been fired from the convent windows; and we burnt it afterwards.

"The inhabitants might have escaped the penalty by handing over the guilty and paying 15,000 francs.

"The inhabitants fired on our men again. The division took drastic steps to stop this, the villages being burnt and the inhabitants being shot. The pretty little village of Gue d'Ossus, however, was apparently set on fire without cause. A cyclist fell off his machine and his rifle went off. He immediately said he had been shot at. All the inhabitants were burnt in the houses. I hope there will be no more such horrors.

"Disgrace to Our Army."

"At Leppes apparently 200 men were shot. There must have been some innocent men among them. In future we shall have to hold an inquiry as to their guilt instead of shooting them.

"In the evening we marched to Maubert-Fontaine. Just as we were having our meal the alarm was sounded—everyone is very jumpy.

"September 3. Still at Rethel, on guard over prisoners. . . . The houses are charming inside. The middle class in France has magnificent furniture. We found stylish pieces everywhere and beautiful silk, but in what a state. . . . Good God! . . . Every bit of furniture broken, mirrors smashed. The Vandals themselves could not have done more damage. This place is a disgrace to our army. The inhabitants who fled could not have expected, of course, that all their goods would have been left intact after so many troops had passed. But the column commanders are responsible for the greater part of the damage, as they could have prevented the looting and destruction. The damage amounts to millions of marks; even the safes have been attacked.

"In a solicitor's house, in which, as luck would have it, all was in excellent taste, including a collection of old lace and Eastern works of art, everything was smashed to bits.

"I could not resist taking a little memento myself here and there. . . . One house was particularly elegant, everything in the best taste. The hall was of light oak; I found a splendid raincoat under the staircase and a camera for Felix." (From the diary of an officer in the One Hundred Seventy-eighth regiment, Twelfth Saxony corps.)

But his horror apparently was not shared by the German commander in chief, as is evident from the following:

"Order.

"To the People of Liege. "The population of Andenne, after making a display of peaceful intentions toward our troops, attacked them in the most treacherous manner. With my authorization, the general commanding these troops has reduced the town to ashes and has had 110 persons shot.

"I bring this fact to the knowledge of the people of Liege in order that they may know what fate to expect should they adopt a similar attitude.

"Liege, 22d August, 1914.

"GENERAL VON BUELOW."

Brand Whitlock Writes of Massacres. In his report of September 12, 1917, to the secretary of state, Minister Whitlock has much to tell of the policy of frightfulness. The following passages refer to the subject of massacres:

"Summary executions took place (at Dinant) without the least semblance of judgment. The names and number of the victims are not known, but they must be numerous. I have been unable to obtain precise details in this respect and the number of persons who have fled is unknown. Among the

Belgians who were shot, Mr. Defeln, mayor of Dinant, Sasserath, first alderman; Nimier, aged seventy;
Consul for the Argentine Republic Victor Porcellet, who was executed in the presence of his wife and seven children; Wasseige and his two sons;
Messrs. Gustave and Leon Nienise, two very old men; Jules Monin and others all shot in the cellar of their brewery; Mr. Camille Pistte and son, aged seventeen; Philippart Piedfort,
his wife and daughter; Miss Marstigny.
During the execution of about forty inhabitants of Dinant the Germans placed before the condemned their wives and children. It is thus that Madame Albin who had just given birth to a child, three days previously,
was brought on a mattress by German soldiers to witness the execution of her husband; her cries and supplications were so pressing that her husband's life was spared."

"On the 26th of August German soldiers entered various streets (of Louvain) and ordered the inhabitants of the houses to proceed to the Place de la Station, where the bodies of nearly a dozen assassinated persons were lying. Women and children were separated from the men and forced to remain on the Place de la Station during the whole day. They had to witness the execution of many of their fellow citizens, who were for the most part shot at the side of the square, near the house of Mr. Henneble. The women and children, after having remained on the square for more than 15 hours, were allowed to depart. The Garde Civique of Louvain were also taken prisoners and sent to Germany, to the camp of Munster, where they were held for several weeks.

"On Thursday, August 27, order was given to the inhabitants to leave Louvain because the city was to be bombarded. Old men, women, children, the sick, priests, nuns, were driven on the roads like cattle. More than 10, 000 of the inhabitants were driven as far as Triermon, nearly 12 miles from Louvain.

Infants Shot in Mothers' Arms.

"One of the most sorely tried communities was that of the little village of Taminnes, down in what is known as the Borinage, the coal fields near Charleroi. Taminnes is a mining village in the Sambre; it is a collection of small cottages sheltering about 5, 000 inhabitants, mostly all poor laborers.

"The little graveyard in which the church stands bears its mute testimony to the horror of the event. There are hundreds of new-made graves, each with its small wooden cross and its bit of flowers; the crosses are so close ly huddled that there is scarcely room to walk between them. The crosses are alike and all bear the same date,
the sinister date of August 22, 1914."

"But whether their hands were cut off or not, whether they were impaled on bayonets or not, children were shot down, by military order, in cold blood.
In the awful crime of the Rock of Bayard, there overlooking the Meuse below Dinant, infants in their mothers'
arms were shot down without mercy.
The deed, never surpassed in cruelty
by any band of savages, is described by the bishop of Namur himself:

"One scene surpasses in horror all others; it is the fusillade of the Rocher Bayard near Dinant. It appears to have been ordered by Colonel Meister. This fusillade made many victims among the nearby parishes, especially those of des Rivages and Nelle. It caused the death of nearly 30 persons, without distinction of age or sex. Among the victims were babies in arms, boys and girls, fathers and mothers of families, even old men.

Dead Children in Pile of Bodies.

"It was there that 12 children under the age of six perished from the fire of the executioners, six of them as they lay in their mothers' arms:

"The child Elievet, three weeks old.

"Maurice Betems, eleven months old.

"Nelly Pollet, eleven months old.

"Gilda Genon, eighteen months old.

"Gilda Marchot, two years old.

"Clara Struvay, two years and six months.

"The pile of bodies comprised also many children from six to fourteen years. Eight large families have entirely disappeared. Four have but one survivor. Those men that were riddled with bullets—were obliged to bury in a summary and hasty fashion their fathers, mothers, brothers or sisters; then after having been relieved of their money and being placed in chains they were sent to Cassel (Prussia)."

Mr. Hugh Gibson, the secretary of our legation in Belgium, visited Louvain during its systematic destruction
by the Germans. In "A Journal From Our Legation in Belgium," New York, 1917, pages 164-165, he relates what the German officers told him:

"It was a story of clearing out civilians from a large part of the town, a systematic routing out of men from cellars and garrets, wholesale shootings, the generous use of machine guns, and the free application of the torch—the whole story enough to make one see red. And for our guidance it was impressed on us that this would make people respect Germany and think twice about resisting her."

German pastors and professors far from the excitement of the firing have defended this policy of frightfulness.

"We are not only compelled to accept the war that is forced upon us
. . . but are even compelled to carry on this war with a cruelty, a ruthlesness, an employment of every imaginable device, unknown in any previous war."—Pastor D. Baumgarten, in Deutsche Reden in Schwerer Zeit,
"German Speeches in Difficult Days."
